In maths we like to explore lots of different types of questions. Every Christmas, Mrs Carr sends us a letter, setting us a Fermi question. These are questions where we have to ask our own questions, use estimation and reasoning skills. They are ones where a seemingly impossible-to-calculate answer is estimated.

This year she has asked questions like:

1. How many truckles of cheese will fill the hall?

2. How far does Father Christmas have to walk to walk around the whole of our school ?

3. How many lights are on the Christmas Tree?

During advent we will be working together to estimate and send Mrs Carr a reply.

I wonder what we will find?
